SATURDAY June 17. 1721.

To the Author of the London Journal.

SIR,

CONSIDERING what sort of a Creature Man is, it is scarce possible to put him under too many Restraints, when he is possess'd of great Power: He may possibly use it well; but they act most prudently, who, supposing that he would use it ill, do inclose him within certain Bounds, and make it terrible to him to exceed them.

Men that are above all Fear, soon grow above all shame. Regia putere & mutu, sua nusquam ingenia noverunt, says Tacitus of Nero, who had liv'd a great while inoffensively, and seemed virtuously; but finding at last, that he might do what he would, he let loose his Apetite for Blood, and committed such mighty, such monstrous, such unusual Slaughters and Outrages, as none but a Heart bent on the Study of Cruelty could have devised. The grave Councils of Seneca and Burrus were, for some Time, Checks upon his Wicked Nature; and doubtless he apprehended, that if he made direct and downright War upon his People, they would use Resistance and make Reprisals: But discovering, by degrees, that they would bear any thing, and his Soldiers would execute every thing, he grew into an open Defiance with Mankind, and daily and wantonly wallowed in their Blood: Having no other Rival, he seemed to rival himself; and every Day's Wickedness was blacker than another.

And yet Nero was not the worst of all Men: There have been Thousands as bad as he, and only wanted the same Opportunity to shew it. And there actually have been many Princes in the World, who have shed more Blood, and done more Mischief to Mankind than Nero did. I could instance in a late one, who destroyed more Lives than ever Nero destroyed, perhaps an Hundred to One. It makes no Difference that Nero committed Butcheries out of Cruelty, and the other only for his Glory; however the World may be deceived by the Change of Names into an Abhorrence of the One, and an Admiration for the Other: It is all one to a Nation, when they are to be slaughtered, whether they be slaughtered by the Hangman, or by Dragoons, in Prison or in the Field: Nor is Ambition better than Cruelty, when it begets Mischiefs as great.

It is nothing strange that Men, who think themselves unaccountable, should act unaccountably, and that all Men would be unaccountable if they could; even those who have done nothing to displease, do not know but some Time or other they may; and no Man cares to be at the intire Mercy of another. Hence it is that if every Man had his Will, all Men would exercise Dominion, and no Man would suffer it; it is therefore owing more to the Mortifities of Men, than to their Inclinations, that they have put themselves under the Restraint of Laws, and appointed certain Persons call'd Magistrates, to enforce them; otherwise they would never be executed, scarce any Man having such a Degree of Virtue as willingly to execute the Laws upon himself; but on the contrary, most Men thinking them a Grievance, when they come to meddle with themselves and their Property. Suavem legem Aselli & exactor was the Character of Pompey; he made Laws, when they suited his Occasions, and broke them when they thwarted his Will: And it is the Character of almost every Man possess'd of Pompey's Power: They intend them for a Security to themselves, and for a Terrour to others. This shews the Distrust that Men have of Men; and this made a great Philosopher call the State of Nature a State of War; which Definition is true in a restrained Sense, since human Societies and human Laws are the Effect of Necessity and Experience; wherein were all Men left to the boundless Liberty they claim from Nature, every Man would be interfering and quarrelling with another; every Man would be plundering the Acquisitions of another; the Labour of one Man would be the Property of another, and Weakness would be the Prey of Force; and one Man's Industry would be the Cause of another Man's Idleness.

Hence grew the Necessity of Government, which was the mutual Contract of a Number of Men, agreeing upon certain Terms of Union and Society, and putting themselves under Penalties, if they violated these Terms, which were call'd Laws, and put into the Hands of one or more Men to execute. And thus Man quitted Part of their Natural Liberty to acquire Civil Security: But frequently the Remedy prov'd worse than the Disease, and human Societies had often as much to fear from their own Magistrates, when wherever they were entrusted with too much Power, always abus'd it, and grew mischievous to those who made them what they were. Rome, while she was free, (that is, while she kept her Magistrates within due Bounds) could defend her self against all the World, and conquer it; but being enslaved, (that is, her Magistrates having broke their Bounds) she could not defend her self against her own single Tyrants; nor could they defend her against her foreign Foes and Invaders; for by their Madness and Cruelties they had destroy'd her Virtue and Spirit, and exhausted her Strength. This shews that those Magistrates, that are at absolute Defiance with a Nation, either cannot subsist long, or will not suffer the Nation to subsist long; and that mighty Traitors, rather than fall themselves, will pull down their Country.

What a dreadful Spirit must that Man possess, who can put a private Appetite in ballance against the Universal Good of his Country, and of Mankind! Alexander and Cæsar were that sort of Men; they would set the World on Fire and spill its Blood, rather than not govern it. Caligula knew that he was hated, and deserved to be hated, but it did not mend him: Oderint dum metuant: All the Monster aim'd at was to be great and terrible. Most of these Tyrants died as became them, and as they had reign'd, by Violence; but That did not mend their Successors, who generally earn'd the Fate of those that went before them, before they were warm in their Place. Invenit etiam Æmulus infelix nequitiæ: Quid si fortes vigeatque? "If unfortunate Villany thus finds Rivals, what shall we say, when it exalts its Head and prospers"?

There is certainly no Evil under the Sun but what is to be dreaded from Men who may do what they please with Impunity: They seldom or never stop at certain Degrees of Mischief, when they have Power to go further, but hurry on from Wickedness to Wickedness as far and as fast as human Malice can prompt human Power. Ubi semel nulla de scelerum fine, in peccata perveniunt——a culpa in culpa, a vitio in probra, a probris in præcipita, says a Roman Historian, who in this speaks Truth, tho' in other Instances he tells many Lies; I mean that base Flatterer of Power, Velleius Paterculus. So that when we see any great Mischief committed with Safety, we may justly apprehend Mischiefs still greater.

The World is govern'd by Men, and Men by their Passions; which being boundless and insatiable, are always terrible when they are not controuled: Who was ever Gratified with Riches, or Surfeited with Power, or tired with Honours? There is a Tradition

Price Three Half-pence.]

Tradition concerning Alexander, that having penetrated to the Eastern Ocean, and ravag'd as much of this World as he knew, he wept that there was never another World for him to conquer. This, whether true or no, shews the Spirit of the Man, and indeed of Humane Nature, whose Appetites are infinite.

People are ruined by their Ignorance of humane Nature, which Ignorance leads them to Credulity, and too great a Confidence in particular Men. They fondly imagine that He who publishes a great deal by their Favour, owes them great Gratitude, and all good Offices, will therefore return their Kindness: But, alas, how often are they mistaken in their Favourites and Trusties, who, the more they have given them, are often the more incited to take all, and to return Destruction for generous Usage! The common People generally think that great Men have great Minds, and from hence Actions, which Judgment in the Mind, that the basest and worst of all Actions have been done by great Men; perhaps they have not pick'd pri-vate Pockets, but they have done worse; they have often defraud'd, deceiv'd and plung'd the World: And he who is capable of the highest Mischief, is capable of the meanest. He who plunders a Country of a Million of Money, would in a little his Circumstances steal a Silver Spoon; and a Conqueror, who steals, and pillages a Kingdom, would, in an humbler Fortune, rifle a Portmanteau, or rob an Orchard.

Political Jealousy, therefore, in the People, is a necessary and laudable Passion. But in a chief Magistrate, a Jealousy of his People is not so justifiable, their Ambition being only to preserve themselves; whereas it is natural for Power to be striving to enlarge it self, and to be encroaching upon those that have none. The most laudable Jealousy of a Magistrate is to be jealous for his People; which will shew that he loves them, and has us'd them well: But to be jealous of them, would denote that he has evil Designs against them, and has us'd them ill. The People's Jealousy tends to preserve Liberty; and the Prince's to destroy it. Venice is a glorious Instance of the former, and so is England; and all Nations who have lost their Liberty are melancholy Proofs of the later.

Power is naturally active, vigilant and distrustful; which Qualities in it push it upon all Means and Expedients to fortify it self, and upon destroying all Opposition, and even all Seeds of Opposition, and make it restless as long as any thing stands in its Way. It would do what it pleases, and have no Check-Now, because Liberty chastises and shortens Power, therefore Power would extinguish Liberty; and consequently Liberty has too much Cause to be extending Jealousy, and always upon her Defence. Power has many Advantages over her; it has generally numerous Guards, many Creatures, and much Treasure, besides, it has more Craft and Experience, and less Honesty and Innocence: And whereas Power can, and for the most Part does subsist where Liberty is not, Liberty cannot subsist without Power; so that she has, as it were, the Enemy always at her Gates.

Some have said that Magistrates, being accountable to none but God, ought to know no other Restraint. But this Reasoning is as frivolous as 'tis wicked; for no good Man cares how many Punishments and Penalties lie in his Way to an Offence which he does not intend to commit; A Man who does not mean to commit Murther, is not sorry that Murther is punish'd with Death. And as to wicked Men, their being accountable to God, whom they do not fear, is no Security to us against their Folly and Malice; and to say that we ought to have no Security against them, is to insult common Sense, and give the Lie to the first Law of Nature, that of Self-preservation. Humane Reason says, that there is no Obedience, no Regard due to those Rulers who govern by no Rule but their Lust: Such Men are no Rulers; they are Outlaws, who being at Defiance with God and Man, are protected by no Law of God, or of Reason. By what Precept, moral or divine, are we forbid to kill a Wolf, or burn an infected Ship? Is it unlawful to prevent Wickedness and Misery, and to resist the Authors of them? Are Crimes sanctified by their Greatness? And is he who robs a Country, and murthers Ten Thousand, less a Criminal than he who steals single Guineas, and takes away single Lives? Is there any Sin in provoking and refusing, or resisting the greatest Sin that can be committed, namely, that of oppressing and destroying Mankind by wholesale? Sure there never were such open, such shameless, such selfish Impostors, as the Advocates for lawless Power. It is a damnable Sin to oppress them; and yet it is a damnable Sin to oppose them when they oppress, or gain by the Oppression of others. When they are hurt themselves ever so little, or but think themselves hurt, they are the loudest of all Men in their Complaints, and the most outrageous in their Behaviour: But when others are plunder'd, oppress'd and butcher'd, Complaints are Sedition; and to seek Redress is Damnation. Is not this to be the Authors of all Wickedness and Folly?

To conclude; Power, without Control, appertains to God alone; and no Man ought to be trusted with what no Man is equal to. In Truth there are so many Passions and Inconsistencies, and so much Selfishness, belonging to human Nature, that we can scarce be too much upon our Guard against each other. The only Security we can have that Men will be Honest, is to make it their Interest to be Honest; and the best Defence we can have against their being Knaves, is to make it terrible to them to be Knaves. As there are many Men wicked in some Stations, who would be innocent in others; the best Way is to make Wickedness unsafe in any Station.

I am, &c.

Your humble Servant,

CATO.

P. S. This Letter is the Sequel of that upon Human Nature; and both are intended for an Introduction to a Paper, I am to write one Time or other, upon the Restraints which all wise Nations put upon their Magistrates.

FORRIGN AFFAIRS.

THE Plague continues to rage in France, but not in so violent a manner as it has done; however, 'tis yet very fatal to Multitudes, and they give us but small Hopes of their getting free of it in haste.

The War between Poland and Turkey is not yet begun, but as both Armies are on the March towards the Frontiers, 'tis feared we may soon hear of a Rupture on that Side.

The Muscovites have made another Descent in Sweden, and with their usual Humanity, ravaged the Country, and spoiled the Mines, laying all waste before them with Fire and Sword. The Particulars are not yet come to Hand; however, they assure us, that they put all to the Sword whom they found in Arms, and committed many other Cruelties, all which we expect by the next Post.

LONDON.

HIS Royal Highness the Prince has deferred his going to Richmond for some time longer.

The young Princesses, who have been indisposed of a scarlet Fever, are now much better, and will quickly go to Kensington.

A Reward of a 100 l. with his Majesty's most gracious Pardon, is offered for a Discovery of the suspected Murderers of Five of the Lord Polwarth's Servants, and Three Danish Passengers, on Board the Ship Batchelor of Newcastle, lost on the Gunfleet Sands in May, as hinted at in our last.

We hear, that a Lottery for a Million will speedily be set on Foot.

The beginning of last Week died, of the Small-Pox, the Wife of Mr. Vernon, Nephew of the late Counsellor Vernon, who had been married but Three Weeks, she was Daughter of —— Wheeler, Esq; Under-Treasurer of the Middle-Temple.

We hear, there is Advice from Paris, that Capt. Bigby, one of the Directors of the Mississippi Company, was hanged there last Saturday in the Evening.

In the new Commission of the Peace that passed the Seals the Beginning of last Week, we have the following Alterations are made for the County of Middlesex, viz.

As alſo two Malteze, who took an Algerene of Cape Corſica, of 60 Guns, with about 150 Whites and 50 Blacks, which they have ſent for Slaves.

To the Author of the London Journal.

SIR, Gibraltar, May 10. 1721.

I Have not troubled you ſince my laſt of the 31ſt of March; I then adviſed you of Commodore Stewart's Arrival here from Liſbon, with his Majeſty's Approbation of the Peace concluded with the Moors, which is ſince come by a Meſſenger directly from England. The Commodore deſigned to have gone over to Tetuan, in a few Days after his Arrival, (which I was in Hopes to adviſe you of from Poſt to Poſt, and is the Reaſon I have not wrote to you before) but Benharter the Jew, who treats with the Commodore on the Peace, jointly with the Baſhaw of Tetuan waited here till the Commodore's Return from Liſbon, when he receded from ſeveral Articles he had agreed to, demanding Money before the Commander went over to Barbary, which he was not to receive till his Return with the Captives into Chriſtendom, which cauſed Diſtruſts and Jealouſies on both Sides. The Commodore believing the Jew had only a Deſign to cheat him, and the Jew offended that he ſhould harbour any ſuch Thoughts. Several Papers were drawn out and ſent to each other to be ſigned, to deſtroy ſome Effects of Benharter, for the Security of ſome Money he had before receiv'd, in caſe the Commodore ſhould not ſucceed in bringing away the Captives, but were refuſed by both Parties; the Breach became ſo wide, and Meaſures carried ſo high that 'twas fear'd might have overthrown every thing that had been done before, tho' the Commodore hath done every thing on his Part to prevent it. M. Holcoſide, who hath taken a great deal of Trouble and Pains in this Affair, for the Sake of the poor Captives, and to whom the Jew owes a great many Obligations, and certainly hath a Regard for him, became Mediator between both, to whom was left to draw out a Paper for them both to ſign, which was done; and the Jew, to ſhew how ready he was to conſent thereto, would not hear it read before he had ſigned it. Mr. Holcoſide hath further engaged the Jew to be Security for the remaining Ranſom of the Captives, which is to come from England, more than what the Commodore carries with him, who hath promiſed to do it, and that he ſhall receive all the Marks of Honour in the Country, and will ſerve him to the ourselves, Every Thing seems to be very well reconciled; the Commodore landed on the other side the 7th Instant, and is at Tetuan, where, after the accustomary Ceremonies were over, nothing but Joy and Satisfaction appeared on both sides. The Commodore may stay a short Time at Tetuan to proceed with the Ambassador to Mequenez; I heartily wish him Success in his Embassy, and the People their Liberty; and 'tis believed, the only Difficulty will be when they come to the Water-side to imbark; whether the Jew will let them, before he knows what he is to have for himself, which is left to the Commodore; and if the other should not like the Offer, 'twill even then be in his Power to stop the Captives: for those who know Barbary tell us, 'tis in his Power to conclude the Peace, or to overthrow the whole, as he shall think fit. I think the whole Ransom is no more than Twelve Thousand Locks, Twelve Hundred Barrels of Powder, One Hundred Pieces of fine and coarse Cloth, and Ten Thousand Dollars; which is the footing it was on in Commodore Cavendish's time. And that our Ships must take care to have Mediterranean Passes, otherwise they will be made Prizes, if taken by the Moors, who have the same Liberty to examine them as the Algerines.

I am, SIR,

Your Humble Servant.

P. S. In Port are the Dover, Sheerness and Tryal Men of War; the Cornwall, the Hannah and Elizabeth, Capt. Wilds, from Oran, lying Quarantine; the Vine just now arrived.

Letters came last Week to the Right Honourable the Lord Carteret and Board of Trade, from the Governour of Bermudas, giving a bad Account of the Havock made by the Pyrates about the Leeward Islands; they have taken a French Man of War of Forty Guns, on Board of whom was the Governour of Martinico, whom they immediately hung up, with the Captain and several of the Men. They have likewise taken a Dutch Ship of Thirty Guns and Eleven Trading Sloops from Martinico, &c. and several Ships bound to the Leeward Islands, and Jamaica; the only Jamaica Ship we can learn the Name of is the Love Galley, Capt. Finchley. The Pirates are encreased to upwards of Fifteen Hundred; as I am at present informed of their Stations, nothing can well escape them.

It has been published that the Dutchess of Montague lies dangerously ill in Buckinghamshire: But we are assured, that her Grace is in perfect Health at Bristol.

These, whose perfect have been of the above Ailments, will by the Use of this Medicine, be preserved from them: It has a delightful Flavour, and is agreeable in Breakfasts, Puddings and Vapours. Sold at Mr. Garraway's, under the South Entrance of the Royal-Exchange, Cornhill; price 1 s. 6 d. Court Books, with Directions.

AT the Hungary Water Ware-House at the Black-Boy and Comb in Fleet-street, near the Bridge, is Sold right French Hungary Water, lately imported in large Flint Half-pint Bottles, at One Shilling and Three-pence each; the same that has been sold at the said Place these Years, or rather better, being a fresh Parcel. And that the Publick may no longer be imposed upon by the spurious Counterfeits of the Town, they are desired to try the only Remedy they have to purchase it into a Glass of Water; if it turns the Water white, it's good, if a dry Colour, or blue, it is not. Snuff, Mixtures, and Others, may be supply'd by Wholesale at the said Place.

MARELLA's ancient infallible Cordial Horse-Balls.

FOR the Publick Good, at 4 s. per Pound, being the most experienced Remedy for any Cough or Cold, giving Immediate Relief, by opening all Obstructions in the Lungs, carrying off all Viscidity or Phlegm, Surfeits, Loss of Appetite by hard Working, or any other Distempers incident to Horses. This Medicine, which for many Years hath been constantly practised, and known to be the best Thing for Staling a foul Stomach Coat, and preserving the Grease (which is the Health) in the Heels, and it takes away (that at long Continuance) proves an effectual Cure; it purifies the Blood, eradicates and destroys all Worms, and in a short time will cause the Hard Horse to Farrow and grow Fat. N. B. These Cordial Horse-Balls will keep good for many Years, and are proper to be given at all Seasons, especially Spring and Fall, in order to keep their Bodies from those Humours they are then so subject to. Truly prepared and Sold by Mr. Markham, at the Seven Stars under St. Dunstan's Church in Fleet-street, and allowed by him to be Sold at Mrs. Rawe's, the North Entrance of the Royal-Exchange, in London. To prevent Counterfeits, the Markham's Arms are on the printed Directions.

JUlapium Asthmaticum, or the Asthmatick Julep, which is known by many Years Experience to be a never-failing Medicine in old inveterate Asthma's, which fabricating Fit it puts off in a Moment; it gives a perfect Relief in framing laborious Coughs, that are unmercifully troublesome Night and Morning: 'Tis a most excellent Remedy for Shortness of Breath upon any Motion, and in breathing with Difficulty, Straightness of the Breast with Heartburn and Wheezing. Nothing excels this admirable Julep, for by opening the Bronchial Ducts and Pneumonic Passages, it penetrates into the inmost Recesses of the Lungs, and there meeting with rough, thick, cold, clammy, thin Phlegm, so attenuates, divides, moves, and works it, that by coughing and spitting, it expectorates and throws up all such Matter, with the greatest Ease and Pleasure, thereby cleansing and freeing the Breast and Lungs, when Stuffed up and clogged with a heavy Load, and so prevents Consumptions, Ulcers of the Lungs, &c. Note, It is a safe and present Medicine, to be taken by Spoonfuls, according to the printed Directions, without the least Confinement, or Danger of catching Cold. To be had at Mr. George Strahan's at the Golden-ball over-against the Exchange, Cornhill, and at no other Place, 2 s. 6 d.

The VENEREAL PREVENTION;

FOR both Sexes, but lately published, and has had a wonderful Success; which being used by INJECTION any Time the Day after Intercourse, tho' with the most infectious and loathsome Man, or Woman, does infallibly conquer and destroy all the Particles of the Venereal Poyson, before it can fix or settle on the Parts, to put them into a Ferment; which most surely and entirely PREVENTS all manner of Dangers and Infections whatever, in every Part of the Venereal Distemper; and it is so certain in its preventing, that it has cured Several Cases of Ten Days Standing. If the Party exposed be scrupulously inspected, and should be very sound and well, yet making use of the said PREVENTION, which is no Pain, and but little Trouble, will be of great Service in thoroughly cleansing and strengthening the Passages. Syringes are sold at most Pewterers Shops. There is likewise the most noble Water for curing outward Ulcers, Sinckers, or any old Sores, whether Venereal or not, only by washing the infected Parts with it.

The VENEREAL PREVENTION in three Shillings and Six-pence, and the Clear Water two Shillings; but if sold together, the Two Five Shillings; there is enough of either Part to serve a considerable Time; both the Vials are sealed with Six Mullets and two Scythes, quartered; the Crest a Talbot: So that any Person may be sure to have of the Places under-named, and the Person that sends be assured of the Right, full Directions are with each Vial in print, how they are to be used.

Whereas several fine Arts and Secrets have been lost for a time in the Age, through various Accidents; Those among others, are of late brought to light again, viz. I. An Universal Tooth Powder, made by Her Royal Highness, the Young Princesses, &c. which Tincture immediately cleanses and preserves Teeth, from, rotten, hollow, black, loose Teeth, Scorbutick Gums, Heats, Rheums, Defluxions, Breath, whereby Ardent Perfume exhales out their Stumps again with Pleasure, and Whiteness of the Teeth thereby exceeding all others. Price 7 s. 6 d. II. The Tincture of Lucifick, which renders the Skin so fair, smooth and clear, that the Blood circulating in the Veins appears plainly; as in a Face, that's brown, red, yellow or full of Spots, Pimples, after a small Time, is hardly believ'd to be the same, keeping the Face, free from Wrinkles, a Grace to the Beauty. III. The Crystal Soap, the finest and best made under the Sun for the most tender-skin'd, clear Complexion, and to keep themselves always the same, 2 s. 6 d. the Pound. Sold at these Four Toy-shops, viz. the Great Corner Toy-shop of Ludgate-street; at the Crown and Pearl near the Royal-Exchange in Corn-hill; at the Corner of Pall-Mall Court in Pall-Mall; at Mr. Bouchet's next to the Corner of Surrey-street in the Strand.

GIBSON's MOST EXCELLENT CORDIAL HORSE BALLS.

AT Four Shillings per Pound, which in Forty Years private Experience, and Ten Years Publication, are approved of, us'd, and recommended, by a great many of the Nobility, to be a certain Cure for any Cold, old or new Surfeits, Worms, or Botts, are better than any Cordial Drink, and not half the Price. Also his extraordinary Preparation of Antimony, at Five Shillings per Pound, which prevents Grease falling to, or Stiffness in the Limbs after hard Riding; cures those that are greased, though never so bad; disperses all Knots and Swellings; preserves the Eyes, purifies the Blood better than purging; cures the Hide-bound, mangy-tough Coats, occasioned by Surfeits, the fine and smooth, kills all Sorts of Worms, with many other peculiar Virtues, better experienced than expressed, are only prepared by Samuel Gibson, Druggist, at the Angel and Crown in Lombard-street, London, are sold there by him, and at Mont's Coffee-House, in York, with printed Directions. N. B. By using these Medicines Spring and Fall there is no need of purging, and Travellers may save many Stories by having them on the Road, the Operation being immediate and certain in the Gripes, or loss of Appetite from Sickness or Overwork.

Tinctura Amara Stomatic; or, Dr. Andrew's famous bitter Stomach Tincture, WHich is a most grateful, bitter, and pleasant Flavour, and is found by long Experience to exceed all the Stomach Elixirs and Tinctures in the whole World, by reason it keeps the Body loosable, by giving two or three Stools a Days; yet any Person may take it may eat, drink, and go abroad as if they had taken nothing. Moreover this noble Cordial repairs the Tone of the Stomach, restores its natural Heat, recalls lost Appetite, helps Concoction, takes off Nauseousness, Heart-burnings, and the most violent Pain of the Stomach, miraculously stops the most laborious (Morning) Strainings and Reachings to vomit, of hard Drinkers, for which no Medicine equals it, by reason it strengthens the Stomach, and at the same Time carries off, by Stool and Urine, the Relicts of bad Wine, Beer, Ale, or other Liquors. It has many more Excellencies too tedious to mention here; for which I refer you to the printed Book of Directions; where you will likewise find Observations on the Gout, worth Notice of any Person therewith afflicted; price 2 s. 6 d. the Half-pint Bottle. Sold only by Mr. Colston at the House de-Lance over against the Royal Exchange; and at the Black-Boy and Comb in Fleet-street, near Fleet-bridge.
